What is Your Current Profession / Work?

Co-Founder
 Radio Active 90.4 MHz
 Founding Member
 SWMRT, Trustee - Hasiru Dala

Share Your Success Story

As the co-founder and Director of Radio Active CR 90.4 MHz, Bengaluru city's oldest and one of India's most prolific community radio stations, I have become a representative of community-based media and of social entrepreneurship. The radio station's commitment to diverse voices is steered by the vision to create a platform onto which people from all walks of life are welcome and their stories are valued. This has translated into the realisation of a media station that counts amongst its staff the first transgender radio jockey, the first informal waste workers couple radio jockeys, a show dedicated to rickshaw drivers that is hosted by and with the community of drivers, a show that brings alive the life stories of people hailing from the northeast of India who are now living in Bengaluru, and many more.

My unwavering belief in the inclusion of marginalised narratives has meant that Radio Active remains one of the most impactful community radio stations in the country. Over the past decade, the station has conceptualised and led multiple awareness-building campaigns and events, and forged long-running partnerships with various state, national and international level NGOs and organisations that have led to more events, workshops, regular shows as well as many sets of special series. The station has expanded its reach beyond just radio shows and has helped create a grassroots network that includes activists, researchers, writers, and many more people, ensuring a constant influx of original programming and highly-nuanced content.

The station's successful and ever-growing social media presence and its impending foray into podcasting are indications of acceptance of newer media to maintain the station's relevance.

I am also an active campaigner and researcher for decentralised community-based waste management and is a founder member of the Solid Waste Management Round table (SWMRT), Bangalore, and am one of the trustees of Hasiru Dala ('Green Force'), a member-based organisation of waste-pickers, sorters and itinerant waste-buyers in Bengaluru. I have focused on training and capacity-building for waste-pickers and developed the Waste-picker Training Manual and the Scrap Dealer Training Manual.

I am also an avid photographer and poet. I have been researching informal waste clusters and markets in Bengaluru, Mumbai, Delhi and have presented a photo exhibition titled 'Daastan-e- Nayandahalli', based on my work in Nayandahalli. I have co-authored the book Valuing Urban Waste: The need for a comprehensive recycling policy

I have also co-authored "Communicating Sustainable Development Goals: A Toolkit for Community Radio, developed by SMART and supported by UNESCO and UNICEF.

The one who shows the way

Mentoring a student is a very rewarding and stimulating experience. Constant interaction with students will motivate the mentors to retrospect their career graph and summarize. They will be able to evaluate their own knowledge and challenge themselves to attain excellence. To facilitate this initiative, our Hon. President Dr. Chenraj Roychand launched 'Margdarshak' – Student Mentorship Program on 20th July 2019 at CMS Business School, Sheshadri Road, Bengaluru.

The Margdarshak program is expected to provide a structured platform for current students to be mentored by alumni who have successfully made a mark in various managerial capacities in the industry. We believe that an ideal mentor is:

- » A person with significant experience and expertise in their chosen field and views the process of knowledge-sharing as a route to mutual growth.
- » A friend, philosopher and guide who provides access to people, places, experiences, and resources outside the mentee's routine environment.
- » Someone who is willing and able to dedicate one-day in the month (5-6 hours) for in-person interactions with their mentees.

The mentors will be in direct contact with our Hon. President Dr. Chenraj Roychand throughout the programme to review the progress of the mentees.

We look forward to your active participation in shaping the students of your alma-mater and contribute towards nation building.

We would also like to hear from those of you who wish to offer your services as Guest Speakers or would like to hire our graduates.
